TIME TO SHINE

OUR OBJECTIVE

The objective of the Master Class talks is to involve members of our string community (teachers, professional musicians, and students), to build knowledge, trust, and an amazing sound from our local string players.

Famine in time of plenty:

These Talks offer an Educational outreach, public and scientific benefit: Invest in our community, promote research in the field under a safeguard of our cultural patrimony and provide feedback to researchers in a safe, appropriate venue for discussions to take place.

A feast of knowledge:

Building on the success of the November 2011 presentation by James Mekean  for pedigree see attached (attended by over 25 teachers, professional musicians students), and Jerry Pasewicz in 2012 on Bows  see attached (attended by over 75 musician teachers, professional and students) I have instigated an annual, free to the public, educational outreach nonprofit series of Master Class Talks here in Omaha and enjoys status as registered Nonprofit, Incorporated in 2012. The next 5 years of talks have been planed, leaders in our exciting field have been queuing up to deliver research to Omaha. This is very exciting.

World-class speaker Fan Tao has agreed to give this year's presentation in October 2013. These talks boast being the first time this caliber of information has been broadcast to the public, for free, anywhere in the region.

Now it's time to get the public involved!
